Many to One Relationship

As shown in the Figure Above that Articles has many to one relationship on Authors. The Authors can always have a lot of articles but every article should only be done by one author. It can also be many to many relationships but since it's a hospital website, every article should only have one author.

In addition, this is a hospital website so I cannot put authors as users because not all doctors, nurses or medical staff, which are the user of this website, can publish or write an article. This might be possible of having authors from a different company, that's why only the name, email and phone number have gathered for the authors' table. Having detailed information about the authors is not relevant to the hospital website.
